Current Comment

By R. H. K.

The opinions (if any) expressed herein, are not necessarily those of The Campbell Press.

This time next week most of us will be slowly recovering from too much to eat on the happy occasion of Christmas, and be looking forward to some sort of a celebration to welcome in the New Year, and the Christmas bills that will come fluttering in soon after—too soon after.

For all its drawbacks—if one can properly say Christmas has any drawbacks (and I maintain it has)—it's a jolly occasion and should be enjoyed to the utmost. And one way to get a great deal of extra satisfaction from the big day is to contribute some little thing toward the happiness of someone less fortunate than yourself. There are many ways to accomplish this, and one of them will doubtless suggest itself to you, if it hasn't already.

And while we're on the subject of Christmas, we might give some thought to the unfortunate people of England and Europe, and offer the silent hope that things abroad will not be in so unhappy a state a year hence. There will be thin times in the countries victim of German aggression, and, I suspect, thin enough times in Germany itself. It is too bad that, sometime during the holiday season, someone could not give the world the tremendous boon of a European picture in which the too-familiar faces of Hitler and Mussolini were absent—permanently.

Yes, a world completely at peace, with all men living in harmony one with another, would be about the best Christmas gift one could imagine. And one, too, within the realm of possibility. But it won't come, I think, until the present era of "civilization" somehow destroys itself, leaving only a nucleus of peace-loving people who are neither too industrious or ambitious. In a world where there is plenty for all, that is possible. But don't try holding your breath until it all comes to pass.

Seeing as how Christmas this year fails to fall on a week-end, with a consequent shortage of free time, a lot of us will be making more or less rapid excursions to reach the homes of those where Yuletide celebrations are to be held. When you start off, remember that it is indeed a dreary Christmas that is spent on a hospital bed, the result of too much hurry. And it's even more bitter when some member of the family doesn't come home at all. Care is the watchword on the highway. If you want to get there—and back—take it easy.

A. J. Raisch, who has the contract for the paving of Campbell avenue from the S. P. tracks east, was granted his petition asking an extension of time for completion of the work at the meeting of the county board of supervisors Monday. Work is progressing in making the road a three lane pavement.

Woman's Club Yuletide Party Cheery Affair

Among the many affairs that usher in the Christmastide, the Country Woman's club Christmas party is always anticipated and thoroughly enjoyed, and Monday's event was another very happy occasion.

The hall was truly "decked with holly," California's own toyon, with quantities of evergreen boughs and cones artistically arranged on the fireplace mantel and hearth. Numerous gay red candles completed the festive scene.

Mrs. Wyland R. Morgan conducted a short business meeting and extended good wishes for the holidays.

The Campbell high school A Cappello choir entered the hall singing "O Come All Ye Faithful" as a processional and then under direction of C. P. Klassen presented two groups of carols and Christmas songs of many lands and many composers, which was remarkable in its range and rendition. The personnel of the group and the numbers which have been prepared for the several occasions in which the choir will participate appear elsewhere. Mr. Klassen's brief explanations of the various songs added very materially to their interest.

A group of Tawasi Camp Fire girls under direction of their leader, Miss Helen Stray, served the appetizing refreshments which the committee had prepared.

Carrying out the theme of Christmas in other lands the girls were dressed in foreign costumes: Shirley Mohar, representing Austria; Jane Gerrans, Japan; Ginger Hasselman, Japan; Carol Lantz, China; Betty Jean Jurras, France; Jean Bocca, Spain; Ernestine Fahler, Mexico, and Mary Sue Field, England.

During the tea hour Miss Ruby Anderson of the grammar school faculty sang several numbers, "Pere Pieta," Stradella; "Vergin, Tutta Amor," Durante; "There's A Song In the Air" and "O Master Let Me Walk With Thee," both by Oley Speaks, and the last named a special request number. Miss Marjorie Graff of San Jose was accompanist for Miss Anderson.

The jars of jams and jelly which were gifts from the members were to be divided between the Women's Service club and the Sigma Sigma club for their Christmas baskets, and the generous collection of playing and Christmas cards and magazines will be taken to the veterans' hospital in Palo Alto.

So ends the first period of the club year of 1940-41, and on January 6 meetings will be resumed with Mrs. J. D. Blaine, chairman.

The committee that served on Monday included Mesdames J. B. Collins, E. F. Whistler, L. C. Shank, G. S. Robson, D. W. Clark, and Anthony Jurras.

Chamber Holds Special Session Tuesday Night

The chamber of commerce met in special session Tuesday evening in the offices of the Campbell Water company with President W. R. Morgan in the chair.

Elected from the list of names submitted by the committee to serve as a board of directors with the officers were, Herbert M. Shadle, Lowell Benson, Joseph Agostinho, Axel Granstrom and Joseph V. Gomes.

J. O. Leverton was appointed as a representative of the chamber to serve with the committee on the proposed dam in the Santa Cruz mountains as part of the Santa Clara Valley Water Conservation project.

The coming celebration of Old Settler's day was considered and preliminary plans were laid and Mark E. Purmort was appointed general chairman for the day.

New Organ At Church Dedicated

The Sunday evening service at the Congregational church when the new orgatron was dedicated was a very gratifying event in the calendar of the church history.

A fifteen minute recital was given by Reginald Greenbrook of San Jose, an expert on the instrument.

The "Story of Some of the Great Hymns of the Church" as related by Rev. Augustine Jones of Palo Alto, was extremely interesting. He had personally visited many of the places where the authors and composers lived or which had inspired their work and this together with his exceptional memory of the lines of the hymns made it very entertaining.

Mrs. Dorothy Rich of the Cam and Dot shop sang very sweetly "Open the Gates of the Temple," and Rev. Fred Morrow of Saratoga offered the prayer.

Everyone was delighted to hear Stephen Merrill again after an absence of several years, and his song "The Stranger of Galilee" contributed very materially to the happy occasion.

Urges That Seal Buyers Make Prompt Returns

"Christmas Seals that are not paid for do not fight tuberculosis, so may I urge that all who have not already forwarded returns for the seals which they have received, to do so immediately."

This was the appeal made today by W. H. Van Dyke, Seal sale chairman for Campbell. Mr. Van Dyke pointed out that there is still time for those who did not receive Christmas seals to obtain as many as they wish for use on holiday greeting cards and gifts. "The money for such late purchases is urgently needed as the association has not yet reached its campaign quota," said Van Dyke.

Extra seals may be obtained by calling Mr. Van Dyke, Campbell 170, or the Santa Clara County Tuberculosis association, Room 414, American Trust building, San Jose, phone Columbia 650.

"The continuance of the local preventive and educational program of the association depends entirely upon the success of the current Christmas seal sale," said Mr. Van Dyke.

Red Berry Picking Against State Law

Brightening many roadsides at this season, the toyon or red berry is protected by law against picking, it is pointed out by the California State Automobile association. State law makes it a misdemeanor to pick these attractive holiday growths on any public land, or upon any private land without written permission of the owner.

SCHOOLS CLOSE FOR HOLIDAYS

Campbell's Union High and Grammar schools closed Tuesday for the holidays, the start of vacation having been advanced several days on account of illness; so many absences of both teachers and students indicated a difficult time for both in trying to make up lost work that the early release was decided upon.

Reports from all over the valley as well as from towns in other sections show a widespread epidemic of severe colds and a mild type of influenza, although a few deaths have resulted from the "flu," or following pneumonia.

Kiwanians Hear Christmas Music Tuesday Noon

Kiwanians enjoyed their own Christmas program Tuesday when they were favored with several carols sung by the high school A Capello choir, directed by C. P. Klassen. The program included some of the songs sung for the Country Woman's club Monday. In "Christmas Eve" the contralto solo was taken by Delta Courtney.

Miss Mary Lewis of the art department staged a series of tableaux of the nativity with the choir singing appropriate carols.

Both the members of the club and the choir were delighted to hear Stephen Merrill who had accompanied his father as guest at the dinner. He sang "Jeanie With the Light Brown Hair," Dr. Merrill playing the accompaniment.

W. H. Van Dyke chairmaned the meeting.

Next week is the youngsters' theater party sponsored by the club in cooperation with Anthony Blanco, owner of the Campbell show house.

Christmas Tea Party To Be Held At Lloyd's Friday

A Christmas tea will be held at the home of Mrs. W. N. Lloyd by the Women's association of the Methodist church, on Friday, Dec. 20, between the hours of 2:30 and 5:30 o'clock.

There will be a table of gifts for sale, and a program of Christmas music during the afternoon. Mrs. Evelyn Buck will present several groups of vocal solos accompanied on the piano by Mrs. John Brunswick.

Receiving the guests will be Mrs. Lloyd, Mrs. Brunswick, Mrs. D. H. Cramer, and Mrs. G. E. Farley. Assisting at the tea table will be Mrs. LBen Howard, Mrs. A. D. Rice, Mrs. H. E. Rice, and Mrs. Cramer.

The Mary's and Martha's circle will be in charge of refreshments.

There will be a small admission charge, and the public is cordially invited to attend.

High A Cappello Choir Entertains With Xmas Carols

The Campbell high school a cappello choir, directed by Cornelius P. Klassen of the faculty, has prepared a delightful repertoire of Christmas carols and songs of many lands, which they have been invited to sing upon several occasions.

One of these was the Christmas meeting Monday of the Country Woman's club. The program presented at this time, and from which selections are made for other affairs, included, "O Come All Ye Faithful," (Portugese hymn), "The First Noel" (French carol); "Glory To God In The Highest" (Tschaikowsky); "Christmas Eve" (13th century), with contralto solo by Barbara Parker or Teresa Conetto; "Away In A Manger" (Luther's Cradle Song), quartet, Teresa Conetto, Lois Frisch, Barbara Parker, Delta Courtney; "The Benediction (Lutkin), "Go Tell It On The Mountain" (American); "Deck The Halls" (an old English song sung at Yuletide); "Ding Dong, Merrily On High;" "Bring a Torch, Jeanette Isabella" (French) and the most widely sung of all, translated into ninety languages, "Silent Night," with obligato by Teresa Conetto.

The choir is participating this afternoon and evening in the choir festival being held in San Jose at the civic auditorium in which choirs of eleven schools are united in a mass chorus, and each one also singing separately.

A special honor has come to the local choir in having been asked to sing at the State Federation of Women's clubs to be held in San Jose next spring. The invitation came as the result of the performance which the group rendered at the County Federation held here in November at which the president of the San Francisco district was present and enjoyed so much.

On the choir roster are Josephine Barbano, Frank Benevento, Peggy Blackburn, Ruth Bohrman, Evelyn Buckmaster, Teresa Conetto, Delta Courtney, James Crawley, Raymond Cushman, Jacquelin Du Pont, Carl Field, Clara Flagel, Lois Frisch, Ida Hasselman, Evelyn Johnson, Frances Lawson, Evelyn Lester, Kenneth Leverton, Mildred McVea, Danver Miranda, Barbara Parker, Margaret Paulson, Mabel Picket, Dewey Raburn, Carolyn Roberts, Charlotte Robertson, Irene Rose, Patricia Shumway, Hazel Silacci, Evelyn Severo, Jack Smith, Wenonah Smith, Jack Strimpel, Byron Tonascio, Barbara Van Meter, Nancie Work.

Hugh Cramer and Philip Robson, both studying medicine in the Stanford medical department, are home for the holiday vacation.

CHRISTMAS 1940

Even to a world darkened by war, Christmas again brings its ageless message of peace and good fellowship.

Nearly two milleniums have passed since watchful shepherds saw the star which guided them to the manger in Bethlehem and heard an angelic choir proclaim, "Good will toward men!" The world has yet to find a nobler message or a more imperishable one. It has endured for nearly twenty centuries as a guide to men of many lands, and for all the world's failure to keep faithful pledge with an ideal so high, it has never lost its power to move the hearts of men and to lead them, despite hardship and disasters, to strive for amity and fellowship among all people as mankind's greatest goal.

This is one reason why Christmas is traditionally the season of giving, of brightening with gifts the lives of others, and particularly of those less fortunate than ourselves. Blessed as this nation is with peace—in this year, the rarest gift of all—we can wholeheartedly make of this Christmas a time for spreading cheer with thoughtful remembrances of others.

The gay wreaths of fragrant cedar and green holly decked with flamered berries, the joyous carols which celebrate in familiar strains the birth of Christ, the jolly countenance of old Santa bringing wonder and delight to the expectant hearts of children, all declare this to be the year's season of good tidings. Wherefore to one and all, we wish a right merry Christmas.

THEY MARCH ON, TOO

Far from being given the horse laugh as antiquated holdovers from the days of earlier warfare, the horse and the mule are finding themselves—in numbers at least—playing a very important role in the defense program. In the past five months, the U. S. army has purchased more than 12,000 horses and mules to keep pace with the expanding military personnel. This month the army procurement division is going on a genuine shopping spree and will purchase, by Christmas, 7,000 additional mounts.

Meanwhile, we hope Maud the mule doesn't discover that while the Army is paying $160 for the horses, it is paying an average of $180 for good mules. That would only add to the general muliness of the breed.

Even in the age of streamlined, motorized armies, Dobbin and Maud gamely hold their own. Time marches on, but so do they.

LADIES WIN THE DAY

For the first time in some 20 years, the annual Gridiron dinner at Washington, D. C., was without its traditional guest of honor last week.

Although the President did not attend this event, he will break precedent to appear at the Women's National Press Club luncheon three weeks hence, a lone male among 125 newspaperwomen. Can it be that the female of the species is less deadly than the male? At any rate, the sharp-bladed satire and lampooning of the Gridiron dinner went unheard by its usual guest of honor. Having lost out to the ladies, the gentlemen of the Gridiron had to be content with roasting celebrities and serving them up to the stags at ease, without benefit of presidential laughter.

THE PRINTED WORD

A year in which the 500th anniversary of the invention of printing has been widely celebrated now brings at the close of 1940 new proof of the enduring, ever growing appeal of the printed word.

A survey of newspaper circulation by Editor and Publisher, newspaperdom's trade journal, indicates that the number of America's readers has reached its highest total in history this year. Both morning and evening, as well as Sunday papers, all registered gains ranging from 3.16 per cent to 4.99 per cent over 1939. That year, in turn, had set a new record over all previous years in circulation increase.

Obviously, the prophets of misfortune went askew in their forecasts when they saw in the advent of radio the death knell of the newspaper. Today radio sets are owned by nearly one in every five persons in the United States. But far from lessening the popularity of the printed word, radio has increased it, as special research studies have shown.

People want confirmation of the radio news despatch's spoken words. For this they turn to the newspaper where they can choose their own reading time and set their own reading speed. Whether they peruse a despatch from London or a bargain day advertisement of a local sale, they have before their eyes a clear-cut, permanent, indisputable record.

The fact that the American press today enjoys more readers than ever before, and that those readers are increasing in number, is clear evidence that the printed word, five centuries after its invention in Europe, is more than holding its own against all challengers. In the United States, through the press, it still remains the chief means of spreading the knowledge and information without which there can be no enlightened, responsible citizenry.

UNCLE SAM, LANDLORD

Up in Alaska's Matanuska valley where refugees from America's dust bowls have started life anew on farms of their own, the apple of discord has again put in an appearance.

Finding greener pastures in well-paying defense jobs at the new army air base at Anchorage, numerous settlers have deserted their farms. Now they face eviction for failure to keep up their property and meet payments.

Meanwhile, 63 other colonists are locking horns with Uncle Sam in a legal battle against the contracts under which they bought Matanuska valley land five years ago. They say they were told, before leaving the states, that they had 30 years to pay off their debt, but now under their chattel mortgages they are being allowed only five years; and that instead of the promised $5 an acre rate, prices have soared as high as $70 an acre.

The promised valley or rehabilitation has not, for many of the colonists, fulfilled hopes. Stories of disillusioned settlers have come out of that valley before, indicating either that Uncle Sam promised too much, or some colonists worked too little.

At all events, Matanuska's grievances are a reminder that Uncle Sam is no miracle worker. As realtor, landlord, and mortgagee, he is subject to all the human weaknesses and failings of others—a fact forgotten by those who believe that by turning over our economic worries to him, all our problems will be magically made to disappear.

POLITICAL PARADE

By CLEM WHITAKER

With the fifty-fourth session of the state legislature scheduled to convene at Sacramento on Jan. 6, California lawmakers are now seeking to round up a crew for their legislative harvesting machine which can sift the flaws from the laws and keep the old haybaler from burning out a bearing.

The men who make the wheels go 'round always play a vital part in the successes and failures of a legislature, but at the 1941 session the burdens and responsibilities of the crew will be unusually heavy, due to the national defense problem and other vital issues which are pending. As a consequence, some seasoned, hard-bitten veterans—like Arthur Ohnimus of San Francisco, who was chief clerk of the assembly continuously from 1915 to 1917—will probably be called back into service. Ohnimus, who knows more about legislative machinery than Henry Ford knows about Ford automobiles, is almost certain to be returned to his old post as assembly chief clerk.

Top man in the assembly, it can be stated with equal certainty, will be speaker Gordon Garland of Tulare county, who proved his mettle during the economy bloc battles and was first elected to his gavel pounding job in January, 1940. Assemblyman C. Don Field of Glendale, an able strategist, appears slated to succeed Gardiner Johnson of Berkeley as Speaker Pro Tem. And Wilkie Ogg, the assembly's sergeant-at-arms, who has handled the law and order end of proceedings with satisfaction, is scheduled for re-election.

In the senate, burly, capable "Jerry" Seawell of Roseville appears to have a safe lead to succeed himself as President Pro Tem. A. Beek of Balboa, veteran secretary of the senate, and Joseph F. Nolan of Los Angeles, for many years sergeant-at-arms, are both certain of re-election without opposition, and Robert G. Alderman of Sacramento, now the senate's engrossing and enrolling clerk, is slated to step up and become the minute clerk.

The senate's powerful committee on committees, which names the standing committees of the upper house—a responsibility formerly vested in the lieutenant governor—will have a new member, it is generally predicted, in Sen. Peter P. Myhand of Merced, who will probably replace Sen. Robert W. Kenny of Los Angeles. Senator Myhand, if he wins the coveted position, will be signally honored, as he is a new member, serving his first term in the senate. Other members of the committee on committees are Senators Charles H. Deuel of Chico, Edward H. Trickle of Carmel, Jerrold L. Seawell of Roseville and John Phillips of Banning.

Resulting from the recent rains many of the sewer laterals have been caving in and county trucks are busy filling in with rock and gravel. One and at times two trucks have been on the job this week. Special trouble developed on Carlyn avenue.

The FARMERS CORNER

by RALPH H. TAYLOR
Executive Secretary
Agricultural Council of California

Editor's Note: This is the second in a series of two articles discussing the operation of the California Unemployment Insurance Act, together with current demands that the act be extended to include farm workers and domestics and that maximum benefit payments be boosted from $18 to $25 per week.

There was a dark era in American history, several decades back, when a few ruthless business and industrial tycoons, greedy for money and power, boldly operated under the infamous slogan: "The public be damned."

That high-handed band of "robber barons," which rode rough shod, for a time, over the rights of their workers, the public and their country, was no more representative of business and industry as a whole than a few arrogant labor leaders are representative today of the rank and file of American labor.

But conscientious, honest, ethical business men have paid the penalty for years without end for the sins of a few cut-throat operators who disregarded the public welfare to gain their own ends. And millions of workers in America will be paying, for many years to come, for some of the ruthless demands made in their name by misguided and short-sighted leaders in the labor movement. Likewise, the general public will suffer by reason of this new "Public be damned" philosophy.

As was reported in the first article of this series, the California State Federation of Labor, which was successful in jockeying up maximum unemployment benefits under the Unemployment Insurance act from $15 to $18 a week at the 1939 legislature, now proposes to ask the 1941 legislature to increase such payments to $25 per week.

And some of the labor spokesmen have boldly announced that they will never be satisfied until a man's payments, when not working, equal his pay when employed!

It is doubtful whether the men who propose such a system have ever taken time out to consider its implications. If a man is to be paid just as much for not working as he is paid for working, why work at all? Why not just enact a law to pay a bonus to the fellow who manages to stay out of work the longest, and be done with it?

There is such a shocking disregard for the public welfare in this attempt to punish the industrious and reward the indolent that it is unthinkable that it should emanate from men who call themselves leaders of labor. France fell easy prey to her conqueror because of that same type of sabotage, which paralyzed her industrial machinery, plundered her resources and corrupted her government. What is proposed with respect to Unemployment insurance in California is just one symptom of a decadent philosophy, but is a symptom which should serve to jar self-respecting Californians out of their lethargy.

The responsibility for the spread of this do-nothing philosophy can not be laid solely at the door of misguided labor leaders, however. In fact, government bureaucrats — interested in extending their power and in enlarging their sphere of influence, regardless of consequences—have been the worst offenders. Having embarked on a program of promising something for nothing, they must constantly promise more to satisfy the appetites they have whetted.

A typical example: The State department of Employment, in a mimeographed bulletin dated Oct. 18, 1939, and entitled, "Department of Employment High-Lights," proudly boasted: "Under the new and amended law (Unemployment Insurance act), Chairman Lewis Matthews and his 2800 helpers are going to try hard to spend more money than they ever did before." They might have added that one of the main reasons for amending the law in 1939 was to permit bigger and better spending. The commission was collecting millions faster than John D. Rockefeller did in his heyday—and there simply wasn't any way to get rid of it. The money, to be sure, was coming out of workers' paychecks and employers' funds which otherwise might have been used to create more employment. But the commission was only concerned with trying to spend it!

It should be noted, too, that this commission, soon after it started administering the new Unemployment Insurance act, agreed with representatives of agriculture that state and federal laws on unemployment insurance should be uniform—and the agricultural exemption definition in the state act was tightened to conform to the federal definition, with farm groups fathering the legislation. Last year, however, the commission not only refused to amend state rules to correspond with federal rules, but deliberately sought to bring many types of agricultural labor under the Unemployment Insurance act, by setting up its own definitions, despite the fact that the law specifically exempts farm workers from provisions of the act.

Now, at the forthcoming session of the legislature, it is announced that an effort will be made to bring all farm workers and domestics under the act—with a fine disregard for bygone promises, or the welfare of the farming industry. And simultaneously, legislation will be introduced to boost benefit payments for the unemployed to $25 a week. Whether the farmer earns $25 a week for himself is of little consequence; his unemployed hands will get that much anyway. "The farmer and the public be damned!"

It has been tentatively arranged that Stephen Merrill will sing over station KNX on the program 9:00 to 9:30 p. m. Sunday, Dec. 22.
